A NEW KIND OF GLASS.

A Discovery that may Vastly Improve the Microscope—The Possibilities. That a recent wonderful discovery in microscopy has not been even noted in the public press may be cited as proof of the general apathetic tendency as regards scientific matters. The microscope has always been regarded as a wonderful instrument, but by the discovery of an entirely new kind of glass lately its powers are increased to an incredible degree. It was in the year 1878 that Dr. Abbey read a paper before the South Kensington association, in England, in which he strongly set forth his ideas that it was possible that a new kind of glass might be found which would increase the power of the microscope. In the year 1881 he and Dr. Scott, a celebrated chemist, began to experiment in the town of Winton, in Westphalia. Their funds gave out in 1883, however, before they had obtained any remarkable results from their experiments, but both were so sanguine of making a beneficial discovery, if they had funds to continue their work, that the Prussian government was induced to give $1,500 for the continuation of experiments. Professor Abbey and Dr. Scott then erected a laboratory in Germany, at the works of Carl Zeiss, a manufacturer of instruments used by scientists. They tried nearly all known elements, and it was only about six months ago that their long labor was crowned with success, which will make them famous in the history of science.

The ordinary glass contains six substances. The new glass made by Professor Abbey and Dr. Scott contains fourteen. The new essential elements of which it is composed are phosphorus and boron, neither of which is used in common glass. With the old glass the full power of the microscope was the discernment of the one-hundred-thousandth part of an inch, and with the new glass it is claimed that the one-hundred-thousandth part of an inch can be distinguished. This certainly seems incredible, but positive assurance of its truth is given by parties who have tested Professor Abbey's and Dr. Scott's new instrument.

When the discovery was first made Carl Zeiss, the manufacturer, in whose place the experimentalists had worked, was in favor of getting out a patent, so that the discovery might prove a most profitable one, but the fact of the experiments having been conducted with funds supplied by the Prussian government prevented the discovery from making it a private enterprise, and compels them to make it a public benefit. The difference between the new and the old glass consists in the refraction of light. The glass is not the same, but will be very shortly. It will be used entirely for high power microscopes. The lenses to be used with the new glass can hardly be estimated. It will, of course, be of great value in microscopic photography. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Trick in Drawing Ships.

The boys think they do some pretty sharp tricks in politics, but I've yet to hear of something better than the way a Breckenridge delegation was elected in the old Fourth ward. It was before the war, and we were divided into Breckenridge and Douglas men. Jim George, who afterward went south, was for Douglas. Eschert Turner Maddox was for Breckenridge. They were both very clever delegates to the convention, and the vote was a tie. We tried it again and tied. Finally our side made a proposition to put the twenty names, ten Douglas and ten Breckenridge men, into a hat, and then have an outsider draw ten slips, those to be the delegates. Jim George was afraid that some trick would be used. We offered to let him furnish the hat and hold it, then he gave in. The names were written and put into the tall silk hat and George held it. Billy McDonald, a printer, lived out of the ward, and we brought him in to draw the slips. He was blindfolded and his shirt sleeves rolled up above his elbows. George held the hat and turned the hat upside down and the ten Douglas names fell on the floor. He stood up, looked into his hat, grabbed the lining and tore it out. Then he threw the hat, a new one, on the floor, stamped on it and kicked it across the room. After awhile he cooled down and said, "Well, I'll stand by it, but I'll give you fellows a champagne supper at Hambricht's (that was the big restaurant in those days); it was the Metropolitan now) to tell me how you did it." We took his supper and his wine and told him. He had written his names with pencil, and we had used ink. You see that was before the days of blotting paper, and we drew the ink with sand. The printer could tell the sand slips as soon as he touched them. —W. H. S. in Globe-Democrat.

The Silent Force of Thought.

The character of thought, or think or put out affects our business favorably or unfavorably. It influences others for or against us. It is an element felt pleasantly or unpleasantly by others, inspiring them with confidence or distrust.

The prevailing state of mind or character of thought shapes the policy and features. It makes us ugly or pleasing, attractive or repulsive to others. Our thought shapes our gestures, our mannerisms, our walk. The least movement of muscle has a mood of mind, a thought, behind it. A mind always determined has a determined walk. A mind always wavering, hesitating, and uncertain makes a shuffling, shambling, uncertain gait. The shuffling of determination braces every muscle. It is the thought element of determination filling every muscle.

Look at the discontented, gloomy, melancholy and ill-tempered men or women, and you see in their faces proof of the action of this silent force of their unpleasant thought cutting, carving and shaping them to their present expression. Such people are never in good health, for that force acts on them as poison and creates some form of disease. A persistent thought of determination on a purpose, especially if such purpose be of benefit to others as well as ourselves, will fill every nerve with strength. It is a wise selfishness that works to benefit others along with ourselves. —Premier Mulford's "White Cross Library."

Prince Napoleon Much Put Out. When Prince Napoleon quite lately was in Rome he went to visit the Vatican galleries, being, as is well known, the devoted admirer of the art. One day he happened to be in the Loggia di Raffaello when the signal was given that the pope was about to traverse the galleries in going to his apartments. Now, though the saintly Prince Clothid, sister of Humbert I. and wife of Prince Napoleon, is, as all the world knows, the devoted admirer of Catholic art, yet "Pon Pon" himself has not been celebrated for his devotion to the church. But now, all of a sudden, he thought he should much like just to see the pope, himself unseen. He used every effort, therefore, to induce one of the papal gentlemen to let him stay hidden in some nook while his holiness passed. But all in vain; the official was just as impenetrable to the prayers of a prince as he has often been found to be to many a tourist under similar circumstances, and his holiness went off in a huff. —Boston Traveler.

The Undertaker's Bill. M. De B. has been a widower for a week. The undertaker puts in his bill. Carriages, mutes, gloves and all the paraphernalia represented an outlay of 1,500 francs. "It's very dear," he exclaims. "Nonsense," suggests a friend; "your wife would have expended cheerfully twice as much on you." —French Fun.

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED AND PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

SEE H. H. TUTTLE'S COMBINATION WASHER!

Wise men investigate and keep hand in hand with progress. Why not have a perfect washer as well as other machinery? I defy any expert to fault the combination. This machine combines three actions either of which will clean clothing. At the O. K. Laundry, 125 N. Lawrence ave., where the machine can be seen at work any day I washed 15 white pieces in thirty minutes, turning the wheel only eleven minutes of the time, and not a piece had to be rubbed, and some were exceedingly dirty shirts. These Laundry machines with heater, $30.00. My family machine is about one-third the capacity. Free, Galvanized Boiler, Tin Wheel and Cover $10.00. Galvanized Boiler, Wheel and Cover, $12.50. Funest to draw water $1.50 extra. We guarantee the machine to be the most simple, durable and easiest to keep clean in the market. A child ten years old can turn out a washing as fast as its mother can rise and hang on the line, and that without the washboard, and that clothes will become whiter than by any other way of washing.
